

Ottawa announces energy storage project

Gatineau-based energy company Evolgen is looking to build a battery energy storage system (BESS) in the community of South March in a project the company says will help address a ...

The project, which supports Ontario's goal to secure renewable, clean solutions for the province's electricity market, will use advanced batteries that adhere to high safety standards.

UPDATED: City councillors unanimously approved the new rules for battery energy storage facilities at their meeting on Feb. 12, 2025.

The Battery Energy Storage System (BESS) enables Ottawa to integrate six newly approved solar projects and reduce increasing reliance on gas-fired electricity during peak hours.

Ontario Premier Doug Ford, flanked by his energy minister and leaders of the Algonquins of Pikwakanagan First Nation, broke ground Wednesday on a new battery energy storage facility in...

The City of Ottawa's Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee approved the changes for Battery Energy Storage Systems (BESS), set to guide the land use policy direction for building battery...

A proposed 250-megawatt battery storage installation in Ottawa's rural west won a resounding vote of confidence Wednesday as Ottawa City Council approved a municipal support ...

More than 60 speakers lined up Thursday to speak to the City of Ottawa's Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee over a proposal to build a vast electrical storage facility in West Carleton.

The Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee today recommended approval of a zoning amendment to facilitate the establishment of a Battery Energy Storage System (BESS) facility and ...

The company is seeking to build a Battery Energy Storage System (BESS) on a 4.5-hectare plot of rural land off Marchurst Road, about 30 kilometres west of downtown Ottawa.

Ottawa announces energy storage project

Web: <https://klconsulting.co.za>

